Applications are reviewed by teams of community volunteers, who then make funding recommendations to the United Way of the Brazos Valley Board.

“We are so grateful to all of our community volunteers who acted as grant reviewers during this process,” said Kat Gammon, Vice President Community Impact. “Our work is community driven and wouldn’t have been possible without their help.”

These grants are funded through annual workplace campaigns, sponsorships, and giving events throughout the year. Anyone interested in contributing to Community Impact Grant funds can support United Way of the Brazos Valley through community campaigns.
